War Summary of The Latest Events

Roumanian and Russian troops have won a victory of some importance in the South Carpathians, capturing two villages, several hundred prisoners and nineteen guns, including some heavy ones. The date of the battle is not given, but the statement is made that "the powerfully organized enemy lines have been broken on an extensive front." Berlin, in admitting the defeat—but, as in the case of the Roumanian report, omitting to mention the date of the fighting—refers to it as a "rapidly developed thrust." The Russo-Roumanians, according to Berlin, "were brought to a standstill in a protected position situated immediately to the west." There have been indications for some time past that the Roumanian forces and their Russian Allies in Roumania have been ready to strike. It had been hoped that this would come as part of the Russian advance against the foe in Galicia, which once promised so much, but it looks now as though the attack had been made with a view to assist the withdrawal of the Russian forces on other points. There is this to be noted, however, that the Berlin report of last night, while recording still farther advances in various areas on the Eastern front, speaks also of a number of strong Russian attacks. These included an attempt on the part of the Russians to retake some rising ground on the plain of the Sereth between Tarnopol and Trembowla. This, Berlin says, was defeated under the eyes of the Kaiser, who for the first time in many months is witnessing a genuine advance on a large scale by his armies, which have had a number of defeats on other fronts. Tarnopol, Stanislaw and a number of other important points are in the hands of the enemy, who is now drawing nearer to Bucacz. The hopeful features in the situation are that some portions of the Russian forces are still capable of taking the offensive, and the success won in the Carpathians, even though that may not be followed up. It is of interest to note that in the fighting of the past few days the women's Russian Regiment has acquitted itself creditably under fire, while a number of the regular regiments have been disgracefully retreating.

German East Africa will soon be German no more. The campaign there has been a very trying one, carried out under amazing difficulties in regard to transportation of supplies and men. The main body of the enemy, it is officially announced, has been once more defeated by the British. Large numbers of the foe were killed and wounded, and the enemy was driven from all his positions and advantageous points.

BIG INDUSTRY CLOSING.

For over forty years the little town of Yarker has become famous as the home of the Benjamin wheel factory. This splendid big institution has grown by leaps and bounds and taking its place in the line of modern firms.

It was with sincere regret that an official announcement has now been made, after several weeks of rumors that the factory is being closed. It will not go into the manufacture of automobiles, as has been reported, but Mr. Benjamin expects to keep ten or twelve men employed for some time to come.

The residents are very down-hearted as a result. The storekeepers have been more or less dependent upon the employees of the firm, and the community as a whole feels the effects very keenly.

German. So more. The campaign there has been a very trying one, carried out under amazing difficulties in regard to transportation of supplies and men. The main body of the enemy, it is officially announced, has been once more defeated by the British. Large numbers of the foe were killed and wounded, and the enemy was driven from all his positions and advantageous points. He is now in full retreat to the southern portion of the colony, with very little chance of being able to hold out much longer. In Portuguese East Africa a German force has also suffered another defeat, and the pursuit is being maintained.

Twenty-one British vessels of more than 1,600 tons each and three of less than 1,600 tons, with one fishing vessel, were sunk last week by mines or submarines, according to an official report. This is an increase of seven vessels in the larger tonnage, and a decrease of seven in the number of fishing vessels sunk. The report was also made during the day of the sinking of an auxiliary cruiser, a former merchant vessel of some 12,000 tons and Berlin reported the sinking by one of its U-boats of a British submarine, C-34, a 313-ton vessel, built in 1909, and carrying sixteen men. The German report says that one man was saved. There is apparently no indication as yet of the intention of the British to make any official announcement regarding the number of German submarines that have been sunk, but it is again unofficially asserted that the number is steadily increasing.

The Allied conference in Paris, in addition to discussing the general situation in the Balkans, is likely to issue a joint reply in answer to the speech of the German Chancellor. The press of Austria, it is said, is publishing articles indicating that the Allies are liable to regard in a favorable spirit the "concessions" of the Chancellor's speech, and it is desired to remove all doubt on this point. In regard to the Balkans the impression that some portions of the Allied force may be removed from the Macedonian area as soon as Greek troops are ready to replace them seems to be gaining ground. In fact, it would not be surprising to find that General Allenby's force in Palestine has received considerable reinforcements from Saloniki, to be used in the next forward movement against the Turks.

On the West front another German attack against the positions retaken by the French on the California Plateau has failed, with heavy losses, and the gains have all been maintained. The British official report deals only with raids east and northeast of Ypres, at which 114 prisoners were taken, and at other points on the front, and a slight gain on a 200-yard front by the foe near Monchy-le-Preux. Zeebrugge, the German submarine base in Belgium, has been heavily bombed.

Edward Long, Toronto, one of the Hydro-Electric wiring gang working near Odessa, met with an accident on Friday morning. While walking from one point to another, he stumbled and fell on a chisel. His hands were badly gashed between the thumb and forefinger.

Campaign of Pirates Cannot Starve the British.

There Will Be No Crisis Even if the Present Rate of Shipping Losses Continues, as the Food Supply is Assured for People in Motherland.

LONDON, July 24.—Kennedy
Jones, the retiring director-general of food economy, said Saturday that England's food supply for the year
was assured even if the present rate
of shipping losses were maintained.
"In March," he said, "the shortage of tonnage, the partial failure of the world's wheat crop, and the submarine depredations combined for disaster. The situation was serious.
We had nine weeks' supplies of breadstuffs. To-day, through the voluntary co-operation of the people,
it is certain we will be able to start
the new cereal year with nearly seven months' stocks, which, together with the enormous potato crop coming into the market, will make next year's situation a mere question of whether in twelve months we will be able to import five months' supplies. Even if the sinkings continued at the present rate this should not be difficult, because of the new tonnage which will become available next month here and in America."

Mr. Jones, after reviewing the effect of the measures taken in the
"Eat Less Bread" campaign in the United Kingdom, remarked that no doubt the Germans had tried their hardest to create conditions which by this time would prevent England going on with the war, but that they had been unable to do so.

"The problem of March was one of supplies," he continued. "The problem now is merely that of prices and distribution. I believe the economy taught the people will be permanent. There will be no waste in the future as there was before the campaign, and there will be intelligent appreciation of the value of foodstuffs among the working classes and the lower and the middle class. Compulsory rationing has been unnecessary by the patriotism
and the co-operation of the people.
The stocks on hand now are larger than any one, even six weeks ago,
dared to anticipate."

Mr. Jones is referred to in press
comment as having "accomplished
one of the hardest tasks of the war
in changing the habits of the country
so as to make it economize in food."

W. A. M. Goode, former honorary
secretary to the Belgian Relief Commission under Herbert C.
Hoover, has been suggested by Mr.
Jones as his successor to carry out
the campaign now in operation.

PREMIER'S BITING REPLY.

Great Britain Will Fight Till Victory
Is Secured.

LONDON, July 24.—"We can't make peace with a Germany dominated by autocracy," declared Premier Hcycd George Saturday. "The war
now becomes a struggle between two definite groups of national ideals.
Significant in this respect is the news announced to-day of the accession of that brilliant Russian statesman, Kerensky, to the leadership of Russian democracy.

"I don't wish Germany to harbor

FIGHTING IN AFRICA.

Germans Lose Heavily Resisting
British Troops.

LONDON, July 24.—German troops in German East Africa attempted to make a stand last week against the allied forces which are gradually closing in on them. An official statement issued here Monday says heavy fighting took place,
in which the Germans suffered large losses. The announcement follows:
"On July 17 the enemy evacuated Mount Shakama. A portion of his forces retreated south-west toward Likawaga, and the main body fell back on Narongombe. Throughout the 17th and 18th our columns pressed the retiring enemy in a most difficult country, capturing a few prisoners and occupying a ridge two miles north of Narongombe by nightfall of the 18th.

"On the 19th the main enemy positions in the vicinity of Narongombe were attacked. Severe fighting ensued, the enemy offering most stubborn resistance and making numerous counter-attacks, in the course of which, it is ascertained from prisoners, he sustained heavy losses. Our casualties also were considerable.
"In the Rufiji area the enemy
evacuated Kitope, our columns having driven his rearguard toward Ma-daba on the 21st. In the Songea area
the enemy, continued his retreat toward Mahenge, offering slight resistance to our pursuing forces. In the northern area a small German column, reported in the Songea area
west of Lake Natron, is now moving south through Engaruka, pursued by Belgian columns from Ikoma."

COST OF REGISTRATION.

Sir Robert Borden Gives National Service Figures.

OTTAWA, July 24.—The amount of money expended by the National Service Board, including the cost of card registration and of publicity campaigns, up to July 1st was $134,- 131.71, Sir Robert Borden told the Commons Monday in reply to a question by Hon. George P. Graham. The salaries of directors and expenses
for traveling, office staff, premises,
and temporary assistance totalled $31,365.89.

The following directors have served without salaries: K. W. Mc-Kay, Colonel Henry Brock, J. H.
Sherrard, Colonel Mignault, G. S.
Campbell, L. P. D. Tilley, R. F.
Green, M.P., Mark Irish, M.P.P. The following have been drawing $250 a month: Capt. Bowen, Colonel Chauveau, J. A. Macdonald, E. R. Chapman, A. L. Haining, and Dr. Rutherford. For the future, the Prime Minister stated, no salary will be paid to any member of the board except upon the recommendation of the Director-General, R. B. Bennett, M.
P.

Sir Robert supplemented his reply to Mr. Graham by saying that the staff at Ottawa was still engaged in the work of the board and in any other work which seemed directly connected with the purpose for which the board was constituted. For instance, a great deal of routine work for the fuel controller and for the food controller is being done in the offices of the National Service Commission, and in that way additional expense to the country has been avoided.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.
Winnipeg, July 23.—Trading in the pit
was largely confined to oats, all grades of which were in demand. The market was strong. There was also a demand for cash wheat, but offerings were light and the business done was not extensive. Oats and wheat for future delivery were higher. October wheat was bid up to $2.55 1/2, an advance of 6 1/2
above Saturday's closing price. Holders are, however, disinclined to sell while conditions remain unimproved.

higher than the previous close; July oats

the enemy without and his within."

Cabinet meeting leading to announced resignation of Prevost sat until dawn Saturday as somewhat stormy. M. Kerensky criticized the Ministers and authorities for not rising to events and for not using their power to suppress mutiny.

Kerensky was particularly toward General Polovtseff, of the Petrograd Military, whom he had proposed to remove from the Petrograd command but reconsidered the decision when the Ministers had assumed the possibility of changing the orders of General Polovtseff, they considered were fraught with danger. It was made clear that Polovtseff's hands were tied. Commitments of soldiers and sail machine guns have arrested six Maximalist (Radical Social) delegates to the Baltic fleet and the Russian destroyer, which was lying at the British.

New French Tanks.

LONDON, July 24.—Describing the part played by the French tanks in the Aisne-Champagne offensive, a correspondent at French headquarters says they received their first use of fire on the plain below Arras, in front of Juvincourt. They were in the successful attack on the German lines and won the enthusiastic approval of the assaulting infantry for they broke up the German machine gun shelters and shot the crews out of their trenches.

French tank is lighter than British and somewhat swifter. Its shape it has a better claim to the name "tank" than ours, for its huge, square construction, at a distance you would probably think was some new-fangled type of tank if the guns peeping out from its sides did not undo it.

Court Plaster Poisoned.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The Department of Justice Saturday warned against purchase of unapproved plaster as the result of reports on alleged German poison-plasters which have appeared in the Western States. Samples of the germ-laden plasters are examined, Assistant Attorney General William C. Pitts announced. There has been enough officially said, he said. "Pending further action it would be well for the public to use no remedies of this kind, except those obtained from approved sources of supply."

Siam Enters War.

LONDON, July 24.—Siam has declared that a state of war exists with Germany and Austria, according to a despatch from Bangkok. Siamers, aggregating 19,000 men, have been seized.

To Probe Bacon Profits.

AWA, July 24.—George F. Mason, K.C., of Ottawa; A. B. C. of Price & Waterhouse, accountants, Montreal, and Geoffrey W. W. of Toronto, were Monday appointed to make further investigation of the profits in the industry referred to in W. F. M. report.

My Rumpel, a seven-year-old dog living at Kitchener, died from effects of a dose of poisonous candy given in mistake for a bone.

July 24 George Saturday. The war now becomes a struggle between two definite groups of national ideals. Significant in this respect is the news announced to-day of the accession of that brilliant Russian statesman, Kerensky, to the leadership of Russian democracy.

"I don't wish Germany to harbor any delusion," Mr. Lloyd George continued, "that Great Britain will be put out of the fight until liberty has been established. I predict it will not be long before the German chancellor delivers a different speech and that is the one for which we are waiting."

In conclusion the Premier said the Entente Allies would go on fighting to the end, knowing that the future of mankind was in their trust to maintain and defend.

King Is Grateful.

OTTAWA, July 24.—King George has expressed his gratification at the steps being taken in Canada to provide "those increased supplies of food which are absolutely essential to the defeat of the enemy's devices, and to a speedy and successful termination of the war."

"I learn with deep gratification of the effective steps being taken in the Dominion of Canada toward providing those increased supplies of food which are absolutely essential to the defeat of the enemy's devices, and to a speedy and successful termination of the war. I have no doubt that the self-sacrifice displayed on the battlefields of France by my heroic Canadian troops will find its counterpart in the efforts of those who, at home in the Dominion, are devoting themselves to this work. All those thus loyally engaged contribute in important measure towards assuring victory."

Received $50,000 Back Pay.

ST. THOMAS, July 24.—Fifty thousand dollars in back pay arrived in St. Thomas Saturday, to be divided among the local Michigan Central traffic employees. This money is to be divided among the engineers, conductors, firemen, trainmen, and yardmen. Of this amount, $15,000 goes to one hundred engineers, $10,000 to one hundred conductors, $7,500 to one hundred firemen, and $6,500 to one hundred and seventy-five trainmen. The new eight-hour day agreement was made last April between the officials and the employees, which was to start at the first of the year, so that $50,000 is the back pay for the months of January, February, March, and April. In May the increase became a part of the regular monthly cheques of the employees.

Kaiser Seeks Cure.

LONDON, July 24.—The Evening News of Saturday printed a Rome despatch stating that the German Kaiser was "seriously depressed, and that his physicians had recommended he take the 'homburg cure.'"

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure cures the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Cures free. All Druggists, 75c.

WANTS A SMALL VICTORY.

Crown Prince Persists in Spite of Heavy Losses.

LONDON, July 24.—Gerard Campbell in a telegraphic communication from the French headquarters on Sunday says:

"The main object of the series of furious attacks of the enemy during the last few days all along the French front from Verdun to Point Lisieux—left bank of the Meuse, Moronvilliers, Craonne, Cerny, Pantheon, St. Quentin—is political. Somehow, somewhere the Crown Prince had to pull off a striking victory to flourish in the faces of the malcontents at home, in the Reichstag, and elsewhere. If that is so he would have done better to stick to military matters. The net result of the actions is that he lost large numbers of men, gained nothing by way of observation posts, and hardly a yard of ground. The possible explanation of the attacks on the Chemin-des-Dames in particular is that he is desperately anxious to drive the French from their observation posts in order to be able to make preparations for a further retreat without being constantly overlooked. The way the French armies foiled his plans in spite of the wonderful grit with which the men of his command tried to carry out orders is far sheer courage as fine as anything they have done in the whole war."

Farmer Killed His Wife.

WINGHAM, July 24.—James McCracken, a young farmer of the 4th Concession of Forest, while in a fit of jealous rage Saturday evening, shot and killed his wife with a revolver at their old home. After returning to the home of his parents, where he had been living since separating from his wife six months ago, and telling his mother of his crime, McCracken fired a shot into his own body, but failed, however, to inflict more than a slight flesh wound. He was arrested by Constable Phippen.

Memorial for Indians.

By way of perpetrating the bravery of the fallen heroes of the Six Nations Indians in this war, the Women's Patriotic League of the Six Nations has decided to erect a suitable memorial. Lieut. Cameron Grant, of Hamilton, was one of the first of these heroes to lay down his life, having been killed at Langemark in 1915, and his former employer in Hamilton has forwarded to the Women's League a cheque for a substantial sum, which has been placed in a Brantford bank as a nucleus for the fund in question. It is thought that the memorial will be erected in or near Brantford.

Indians "Potted" Food.

There is some probability in the suggestion that we owe our system of potted foods to the Indians, who for many years have dried venison, pounded it into a paste, and pressed it into cakes for winter food.

First Mass in Ontario.

The first occasion that the Roman Catholics held mass in Ontario was on August 15th, 1615. It was celebrated at the spot on Georgian Bay near Penetanguishene, where the village of Lafontaine now stands.

CATTLE MARKETS.

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, July 24.—The run of cattle and live stock of all kinds on the Union Stock Yards yesterday was almost unprecedentedly heavy and even at this season of the year, 245 cars in all, comprising more than 4,000 head of cattle, 630 hogs, nearly 1,000 sheep and lambs, and 208 calves. The heavy deliveries, coupled with the extreme heat, had a depressing influence on the market in the early hours of the day, and it was well on to noon before buying was well under way, and when it did there was a notable decline in prices for practically all lines of cattle from 35c to 50c per cwt., and in some cases a clean cut of 75c per cwt.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, July 23.—Cattle—Receipts, 24,000. Weak; beefs, $8.25 to $14; western steers, $8.60 to $11.60; stockers and feeders, $8.25 to $9.20; cows and heifers, $5.30 to $11.50; calves, $9.75 to $14.50.
Hogs—Receipts, 27,000. Firm; light, $14.40 to $15.60; mixed, $14.25 to $15.75; heavy, $14.10 to $15.75; rough, $14.10 to $14.40; pigs, $11.25 to $14.30; bulk of sales, $14.60 to $15.60.
Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 20,000. Unsettled; lambs, native, $9.75 to $15.75.

Hooted as Traitors.

LONDON, July 24.—Odessa remained unaffected by the troubles in Petrograd and Kiev. According to telegraph from Moscow, efforts at trouble there proved a miserable failure. The home companies and groups of workmen and extremist party passing along the streets were hooted by the crowd and denounced as traitors.

Italian guns were active on most of the front.

One of the Canadian Kilties, who have made such a sensation on their recruiting tour of the United States, was married in New York.

Germany has abandoned the construction of zeppelins at the great factories at Friedrichshaven, and all efforts are being devoted to the manufacture of aeroplanes.

The War Veterans' Association complained to the Toronto Police Commissioners that unscrupulous firms are exploiting wounded soldiers by using them to sell goods to the sympathetic public, who will not refuse to give money when asked by men in khaki.

Sandstone Quarries.

Sandstone in red, brown, grey, etc., and of good quality, has been largely quarried in New Brunswick, for building purposes, and in past years found a considerable market in the New England States. Quarries are now being worked at Sackville, Renous River, and other places. Limestone exists at St. John in large quantities. In addition to the quarries that have been worked in the St. John locality a new quarry for the manufacture of hydrated lime has been opened up at Ferryburn.

HUSBAND SAVED HIS WIFE

Stopped Most Terrible Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Denison, Texas. — "After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly do my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would almost burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's step-sister told me my husband if he did not do something for me I would not last long and told him to get your medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued its use, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. LOWERY, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

If you are suffering from any form of female ills, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and commence the treatment without delay.

LEGEND OF SALT RIVER.

The Stream Is a Really Historic One Flowing In Kentucky.

The people of the United States have always been prone and quick to catch a happy or unhappy remark or phrase as politics and to make the most of it.

Once, a long time ago, a defeated office seeker in order to "get himself together" left home as soon as he became aware of the result at the polls. A friend, inquiring for him a little later, was informed by a member of his family that he had gone up Salt river.

Salt river was and is a modest little stream that rises in the hill country of Kentucky and after flowing through a more or less picturesque district for about a score of miles empties into the Ohio. It was in those days a good fishing creek and the kind of stream a jaded and disappointed politician might naturally fancy. There was not a thing wrong about his excursion. Yet his political enemies got hold of the remark that he had "gone up Salt river" and used it to imply that this meant the end of his public career.

The saying spread from Kentucky into other states, and for more than half a century it has been used to express the idea that a politician has been "driven to the woods" for good. "He's gone up Salt river" has come to mean, in fact, that a politician has "been put out of business," has been so badly beaten that he cannot "come back" and "has seen his finish."

Stranded in England.

The London Chronicle publishes the following:

There are about 40,000 dependants of Canadian soldiers stranded in this country at the present time—wives and children who either followed their menfolk across to be as near them as possible while they were on active service, or came over to see them in hospital after they had been wounded.

They are not stranded in the ordinary sense of the word, for no cases of want have been reported. But it seems impossible for the bulk of them to return to Canada now or for some time to come owing to lack of passenger accommodation, and it is stated that even were the war to end soon fully eighteen months must elapse before tonnage could be spared to transport so large a body of people.

The position of some of these Canadian visitors is pathetic. There are many whose menfolk are actually back in Canada themselves, wounded and discharged from the army. Others have lost those whom they followed to this country, and are anxious to return to their homes and relatives. Recently the Admiralty have been able to find room for a few women and children on returning transports, and it is hoped to continue this assistance.

Fish of the Hawaiian Islands.

The fish of the Hawaiian Islands were first officially recorded as early as 1728 by Broussonet from specimens obtained during Captain Cook's third voyage to the islands. In 1903 the United States fish commission described 902 species of fish belonging to the region of the Hawaiian Islands, including a large number of the giant mackerels, such as the swordfish, tuna, oceanic bonito and albacore. With such available and authentic records it is surprising that Hawaii is only coming into its own as one of the world's greatest game fish resorts.

Domestic Cynicism.

"Before we were married you used to send me candy and flowers."

Respecting the Report

Last Winter the Commissioner, under authority of Order-in-Council, required packers to submit statements under oath for some years back and up to December 1st, 1916, of incoming stocks of Meats and the cost of such, as well as statements of outgoing product and the selling value. This Company represented in writing at the time that the information as specifically required was not in accordance with Packing House Accounting methods, and invited the Commissioner to send an Officer to the Head Office of the Company to examine the books for any information desired, and to secure a viewpoint as to the best way of collecting data which would be of use to the Government. This offer was declined, and there was nothing to do but fill in the information required as literally as we could determine it. For example, there was no recognition of the fact that a raw product may enter a factory under a specific classification and leave the factory as a finished product under some other classification.

We submitted a series of accurate figures based upon our interpretation of the official requirements which made no provision for charges of any description other than incoming freight and unloading charges to be included in the cost or to be deducted from the selling price. There was nothing in the report which could be read so as to determine a profit and loss statement. The very fact that with only a statement based upon cost of raw products and value of sales in Great Britain a Government Official has deduced "Large margins," "Profiteering" and "Criminality" if it had occurred since the passage of a recent Act, shows too dangerous a trifling and incapacity to be permitted to deal with any important situation. The statements of this Company have been treated by the author of this report as if the out-going product was identical with the incoming product, and from the series of reports he has singled out two items—the Bacon and Egg reports—and from them deduced an erroneous "margin" which the newspapers have interpreted as "profit." The author of the inquiry shows a strange lack of even a fundamental knowledge of simple bookkeeping and a dangerous inability to co-ordinate figures. The following are specific and outstanding errors in the report:

The principal item that is causing excitement deals with cold storage bacon. The term "cold-storage" is not defined, and the public is allowed to make its own definitions. As all Bacon in a packing house is under refrigeration it is really all cold-storage, and therefore this Company's figures of cold storage Bacon represent the complete quantity of Bacon handled in its entire Plant, whether in freezers or in process of cure for immediate shipment. ### OVERTURES TO CHINA.

Ruling Classes May Be Encouraged to Come Here.

The Canadian Government, through legislation recently proposed in the Dominion Parliament, is making its first overtures to the new China, with the avowed purpose of attracting a share of the growing commerce of the Oriental Republic. The method to be employed is the same as that which Canada sees in successful operation in the United States. It is the education of Chinese students in the colleges and universities, made possible by the relaxation of the exclusion laws, to permit their residence. In Canada, as in the United States, the Chinese exclusion law is directed, theoretically, only against the admission of coolie laborers. In Canada, however, no specific exceptions to the law have been made, and Chinese students and teachers have been barred under the general terms of the Act.

Those members of the Government who are sponsoring the proposed enactment are said to have been moved by the realization of the policy pursued toward Chinese students and teachers, who sought entry to colleges and universities in the United States, has been in the past, and is tending to expand the traditional relations between the Eastern and Western Republics. The officials of the Government have found that the Chinese have been educated in the arts and knowledge, as well as in the sciences of the Occident, upon the basis of their native country, and are coming active agents in education, industrial, and commercial life. These are strongly prejudicial to the people who have befriended them, and of the relations which have equipped them in dealing intelligently with the world. Canada, pointed out, has failed to part in the advantage gained by the United States through the operation of this co-operative system, and the cause of its failure is the failure to create the possibilities of the opportunity afforded.

It is felt in Canada that, with the facts be laid before the Attorney-General for consideration as to their criminality." The situation created by such erroneous and damaging statements is serious as emanating from a Government official, from whom one looks for not only accurate statements but correct conclusions.

The William Davies Company, being a private concern, has followed the practice of all private corporations, except when it made a bond issue in 1911, in that it has not published reports of its assets and liabilities or profit and loss. The present circumstance, however, in which a Government Official has led the public to false conclusions, makes it advisable for this Company, for both the public interest and its own interest, to publish particulars of its business as well as point out the error of the statement of the Government Official.

March 27th, 1917, The William Davies Com-head of Live Stock (Cattle, Hogs and Sheep.) eats, produced 160,000,000 pounds of Meats. ounds of Butter and Cheese, 5,650,000 dozens 000 tins of Canned Goods. 8 cents (or two-thirds of a cent) per pound on Cheese, 1.04 cents per dozen on Eggs, and .47 (f a cent) per tin on Canned Goods. The William Davies Company has assets of $13,385,000 of which $3,865,000 is tied up in fixed investments.

To provide the necessary facilities for the increased volume of business the Company expended $750,000 in buildings and equipment during the year.

Companies of other character present no more reasonable statement of profit and loss based upon the investments made in the business.

The William Davies Company offered to the Imperial authorities, as well as to the War Office Service (which represents the Imperial authorities in Canada) to place the output of its Factory with respect to Bacon supplies, Canned Beef and Pork and Beans at the service of the authorities, on the basis of cost plus an agreed percentage. These offers were successively declined as the authorities evidently desired to purchase in the open market, and on this basis The William Davies Company has secured War Office business by open competition with the world.

panies interpreted cold-storage product as "freezer" product only is evidenced by the smallness or entire lack of figures on the Bacon list for some Plants, indicating that many Firms did not submit statements of their complete stocks, as did this Company. An Official of this Company pointed out this cold-storage distinction to Mr. O'Connor and Miss McKenna in Ottawa a few weeks ago, and the failure to make the distinction after having had it pointed out evidences lack of desire for accuracy of the real information desired.

It is true The William Davies Company, in 1916, exported 97,791,000 pounds of Bacon, but we do not know how the margin of 5.05 cents per pound is arrived at by Mr. O'Connor, as there were no figures to justify such a conclusion. The probabilities are that the margin is arrived at by taking the average cost per pound of incoming product from the average selling price, per pound of outgoing product. This may be a rough way of estimating the gross margin when dealing with small figures, but when dealing with figures the size that Mr. O'Connor has to deal with, a very small fraction of a cent per pound of error makes a very important difference in the total, and one must be careful to make sure that the outgoing product is the same finished merchandise of the incoming product reported on.

Allowing it to pass, however, as a rough estimate, we wish to point out—(first)—the inquiry of the Commissioner allowed only for incoming freight and unloading charges, and made no provision whatsoever for operating charges of any kind, such as labor, curing materials, refrigeration, et cetera. Such actual charges on the 97,791,000 pounds exported were $1,162,000—or 1.2 cents per pound. This sold—a proceeding quite proper, as the forms submitted to be filled in were indefinite and ambiguous, thus permitting without charge of evasion a variety of interpretation as to the information required. It is thus possible that of all the figures submitted by the different packers that no two sets of costs and sales prices are determined at the same common point. It is this difference of interpretation of what was required that accounts for the difference of the alleged "margin" made by the different companies. Common con- sions, however, have been drawn by the author of the report from varying bases of premises.

The figures of the Egg business were submitted on the same basis as Bacon, and similar deductions must be made.

(Second)—The above margin is further reduced in that the author of this inquiry singled out the Bacon figures as an item in which the selling price shows an alleged improper advance over cost, but he did not give us credit for the statements of other products, of which figures were submitted the selling prices of which were under cost. The reason of this was that through failure to inquire the Department entirely overlooked the fact that product may come in as pork and, through the process of manufacture, go out as Bacon or, in another instance, enter the factory as beef and go out in the form of canned meats; for example: much of the product which came in as pork, and which was entered on the pork sheet submitted to the Commissioner—about which he makes no mention—was cured and left the factory in the form of Bacon, and was, therefore, entered on the outgoing side of the Bacon sheet—the result is that the Bacon sales are increased Kindred industries.

Are these centres of activity in the supply of food products to be maintained as garrisons of greed in which the seekers of unholy profits scheme and plot to empty the pockets of men and women whose homes have been emptied by war?

Canadians are in no mood to make excuses or accept excuses for the further toleration of this whole hellish business of bleeding the people of Canada, the people of the British Isles and the people of the Allied countries for Canada's share of the food these people eat.

Public opinion is in a wretched state when Parliament fails to restrain and the Church fails to condemn, not in generalities but in personalities, the greed that seeks to win great treasure out of the people's dire need of bread and meat. Why should not the packing house, the flour mill, the cold storage plant volunteer to place their industries at the country's service in wartime at the average annual profits earned in peace? Thousands of boys have volunteered to risk their lives for the country's service in wartime at $1.10 per day—in many cases a fraction of the pay these volunteers have earned in peace. The abolition of wartime profits in excess of the peacetime earnings in the food products industry is a question that excludes all partyism but the partyism of public duty, and all politics but the politics of public safety.

OUR OTTAWA LETTER

For such an important measure the conscription bill passed through the committee stage in short order. All the fighting was done on the general principle of the bill and no more time was spent on the clauses in detail than was necessary to lick them into workable shape.

The criticism of those opposed to conscription was moderate and sensible. The thing, being as it were a fait accompli, they did nothing that would hinder the bill on its way through the House. Their purpose seemed to be to keep the sponsors of the bill up to the mark. The Government, having put its hand to the plow found no desire on the part of the Opposition to let them turn back. Some unkind people have said that the Government was very much disappointed on this account.

Not to mention the firm clutch twenty-six Liberals maintained on the Old Flag which the Conservative party was trying to wave all by itself the other Liberals joined in an endeavor to make the bill as good a bill as it could be. In short they did not act as was expected and Quebec also fell down on the job. Once the bill passed its second reading Quebec ceased to roar and this also was very disappointing to the Government. The original intention was that Quebec's screams should be heard in the remotest parts of English-speaking Canada.

The Hon. Frank Oliver who has sent two sons to the war—one of whom lies beneath the soil of blood-stained France—is strongly opposed to this conscription measure which the Borden Government introduced to save their skin. He does not believe that a Government which has appointed some hundred royal commissions to avoid certain parts of responsible government is sincere in its dislike for a referendum as an evasion of its duty to the people. Mr. Oliver has been the chief critic of the bill and his criticism has brought out some very interesting facts. For instance the Government has no plan of assigning quotas to the different provinces—the men each province has already contributed. The willing horse is to have another load put on him. Those parts of the country which have sent the most men will be conscripted for more.

Being quizzed on the subject Mr. Sevigny calculated that conscription might raise twenty-five thousand men in Quebec of which ten thousand would come from Montreal and one thousand from Quebec City. Mr. Sevigny further said that there was a general disposition in Quebec to obey the law. Mr. Sevigny's figures are considered very interesting. He is a cool, calm calculator and for the last few months back has viewed the most feverish political questions with the unperturbed impartiality of a man who has a judgeship in his pocket.

Another point brought out by the discussion in committee is that conscription may not end with the drafting of one hundred thousand men. If the war goes on more conscription will be necessary. As the Hon. Arthur Meighen puts it "We shall be in the war more than ever." The added expense of these new levies is causing Finance Minister White much anxiety. Money begins to be tight. The borrowing is not good these days. Cool observers of events say we are not more than a year away from a federal income tax and a land tax. It may even come this session.

A lively diversion has been the spat between Sir Sam Hughes and Sir Thomas White. Either Sam is biting Tom in the leg or Tom is biting Sam.

A bottle of freezone will cost you at any of the drug stores, but wily rid, one's feet of every soft corn or hardened callus. A druggist hasn't any freezone he it at any wholesale drug house.

The strange part is that each gladiator does his biting in the gladiator's absence. As far as the debate allow the quarrel has rived at the retort disco. Though swathed in formal the dialogue amounts to Sir Sam: "You're a liar," Sir Thomas: "You're another."

Another new and interesting of the conscription bill are the izing clauses which were introduced late in the debate by the Hon. Meighen. The Hon. Arthur r penalties and things like that is his type of mind. The penalty, desertion, however, is not tive, otherwise they might react thousand who took leave from Borden and never came back.

Man From Saskatchewan Foretold Dire Happenings.

Superstition of the ancient black witch sort is coming back into its own as a result of the war. Not only England but all the other European countries report the same condition—that wherever men are facing death they incline to watch little signs and omens, and this spirit quickly spreads through their families.

All units leaving for the front have some kind of a pet or mascot, usually a cat or dog, and the lives of these pets are guarded with extreme care. An Australian artillery battalion which got into action early in the Dardanelles campaign had a black cat which made its first appearance during the battalion's first engagement. Men on every side of the unit were killed, but not a casualty occurred among those protected by the cat. Thereafter the commanding officer kept the cat in his quarters and each day sent his orderly out with the cat while it had its airing.

There were no chances taken of the mascot getting into danger, for whenever the orderly sallied forth on the constitutional the officer made him tie a string around its neck to prevent it running away. The jokes that were passed by other units upon the orderly leading the cat may well be imagined. The battalion was later moved to the Somme and on June 26 discovered that the mascot had got into a house which was under heavy fire. One shell was seen to burst directly over the building and a rush was made to find the cat. It was discovered on a kitchen table, hair on end and spitting but unharmed. Unfortunately it died later of shell shock, and the same day the battalion was cut to pieces while defending an exposed ridge.

Little omens that seem ridiculous to the average man are revered by those who are about to face death. In an infantry regiment from Canada there was a private who boasted that by putting on his left sock and shoe first he invariably had good luck. The others were continually "joshing" him about his superstition and one morning before the big push in July of last year they hid his left sock and shoe just to make him use some picturesque Saskatchewan profanity. He not only provided the expletives, but he announced to his unit that dire happenings were pending. Sure enough, when he and his comrades went over the parapet soon afterward their casualties were heavier than any of the nearby units. Thereafter every man who survived religiously put on the left shoe and sock before touching the right.

Another superstition common among the fighting forces is that by rubbing spilled wine or spirits back of the ears it brings good luck. It is believed that this sign spread among the Canadian forces through contact with the French, who believe in the omen religiously. Just before the start of a raid or dash over the parapet the English forces are served with a ration of whiskey or brandy, and in every case the men quietly gather around the one who pours out the stimulants, holding their hands under the jug to catch the drip and rubbing the little they catch back of their ears.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO OUR MEMBERS AND WORKERS.

At our last work meeting the ladies determined, upon the matter being put to the vote, that during the heated term, the room will only be open once meetings being discontinued for the present, the ladies deciding that they would take work home with them instead of going out in the heat early on Saturday afternoons. Will those having work they wish to return, or desiring material they wish to take out, kindly do this on Thursday afternoons? Due notice will be given of the resumption of the Saturday meetings.

The "Merry Octagon Club," composed of eight young girls, who have been working for us for some time past, devoting every Saturday afternoon to this work, have sent us in a very nice parcel of bandages made and rolled, surgical shirts and several dozen surgeon's towels, drawn and hemmed, from material furnished them. They will later take up some other lines in their war work, which they execute extremely well, and are most assiduous in their labors. These young girls have been taking a well-earned holiday at Bogart's-on-the-Bay during the month of July, which has proved in every way most enjoyable.

We would urge all our members and workers that as there is only one afternoon in the week they are called upon to come to the work room at present, let all make it a point to be present each Thursday and make the meeting not only enjoyable but successful.

Hotels Without Bars.

The question of prohibition in its relation to hotel profits has been given a great deal of attention in Canada and the United States during the past year, and it would now appear, from the evidence gathered by experts, that apart from the temporary profit loss the earnings of the hotels have not seriously been impaired, says The Financial Times of Montreal.

The Financial Times has been enabled to secure some interesting data on this important question, which we present to our readers.

The manager of a first-class hotel in Winnipeg says, in answer to the question, How is prohibition affecting the hotels?—"We naturally lose the liquor receipts, and the profits from the sale of liquor, but we are trying to adjust ourselves to meet the new conditions, and we are glad to say that the volume of business is now about equal to what it was under the old condition, even in face of the loss of the bar. This is effected by an increase in our rates and possibly more 'travel' coming to the City of Winnipeg, together with a substantial increase in the amount of local business.

"In my opinion the bar is not essential in the matter of dividend payments," this Winnipeg manager states, "but I certainly believe that we should be allowed to dispose of liquors, particularly light wines and beer, as they do in clubs, either by service in the rooms or in the restaurants. If that were allowed, we would not be so much interested in the return of the bar."

The opinions of a few United States hotel managers may be instructive. A manager in Denver says he never again would have a bar in his hotel, even if the State reverts to the old policy. He would sell in the dining-rooms, however. Another hotel man in the same district is "perfectly satisfied with dry conditions."

In Iowa, a "dry" state, the business of operating a hotel is as prosperous as any hotel in a "wet" state.

It would seem that hotelkeepers have adjusted themselves to the new conditions by various economies, and by extending the scope of the hotel by enlarging dining-rooms, giving more attention to lunch rooms, delicatessen, outside catering, etc.

It is also evident that hotel proprietors in Canada and the United States are endeavoring to secure a modification of the present policy of strict prohibition, and secure in its place special privileges to enable the supply of refreshments to bona fide travelling guests, such as the latter may be accustomed to in their own homes.

The above opinions, gathered from a great many sources, show, however, that from the point of view of capital investments the "dry" hotel may be made as profitable as those who enjoy the privileges of a liquor license.

Countess Tells About Hindenburg

"I SHOULD say Hindenburg was a great brute—so ruthless, so 'terrible.'" Thus spoke the Countess de Turcynowicz, a Canadian girl, during a recent visit to friends in the Dominion.

She shuddered as she spoke, as if a horrible black cloud had for a moment shut out the face of the sun streaming in through her windows, as she recalled the awful memories of life in a country occupied by the merciless "hero" of Germany and his dissolute, cruel, butchering men.

"There was a great scattering of officers when he arrived at my house," she went on, "yet I could not bear to look at him. I felt as if I saw people being killed—being irresistibly, mercilessly crushed to death. He's just like his pictures—very big, very red, very ugly, very horrible. He drinks so terribly—oh, so terribly—but they all do, for that matter. Nothing is too tiny for him to attend to, no humiliation so small that he will not find pleasure in signing."

"One night I had to get up at 3 o'clock in the morning to make coffee for him and the staff," she went on. "They ate and drank all the time. Every day a mountain of bottles had to be taken away."

Yet Hindenburg was always polite to the Countess, although he refused the only request she made to him. Two of her maids had disappeared, one of them a sweet girl of seventeen. Waiting on the "great brute" at table one day, a menial in her noble husband's house, she gently begged that they might be restored. He refused.

Countess de Turcynowicz was formerly Miss Laura Blackwell, of Georgetown and St. Catharines. She became a grand opera singer and while touring Europe met her husband, a Polish nobleman, at present inspector-general of the sanitary division of the Russian army. She settled down with him at Suwalki, in Poland, just on the borders of East Prussia, happy with her little girl, Wanda, and her twin boys, Stanislaw and Hladislaw, when war came. These boys are now in a little school near New York. She is now touring in the interests of the Russian Red Cross and British War Relief.

The things this young-faced woman, whose fair hair has turned white through suffering, could tell of Prussian fiendishness are unprintable. When, in September, 1914, the Germans came to Suwalki she escaped in a trainful of Cossack wounded to Warsaw. "It was an awful night," she exclaimed, "and yet in the light of later things it seems to me happy and sweet that night spent with my children in a cattle trainful of suffering Russians." When the Germans were driven out she returned to Suwalki. "My first feeling," she said, "when I reached my home was that I wanted to put my head out of the window into the clear, pure air. The place was hideous, awful—well, you know all about that!" and a shrug of the shoulders told all the unutterable horror of it.

"You are no longer a human being if you're in occupied territory," she went on. "The second coming of the Germans, on February 11, 1915, sounded like a nightmare. They had

LOSSES TO CANADIAN

A Sculptor and Poet Who Will Live.

Canadian art, which engages against the distracted workaday world, suffered able losses recently. Louis Hebert, the eminent French Canadian sculptor, died at Montreal, and Arthur S. E. poet of promise, was reported from his battalion at Hebert's work was all but dead. Bourinot was on the of a life of achievement in career which was adorned with the culture and garni came from years of study in Paris and Ro father was a farmer, while self worked for a time on a Massachusetts farm, and later trees. His artistic talent found outlet in wood carving, he made many religious in Roman Catholic churches of vance. When he took to the fondness for Canadian history expressed in the leading monument erected in Canada for a first came the monument of De Salaberry erected at Quebec, to be followed by of Sir George H. Cartier, ment Hill, Ottawa. Across it was later erected the monument of Sir John A. Macdonald, Albert, while near by is one Alexander Mackenzie. Hebert represented by monuments Laval in Quebec, Joseph Halifax, Sir Leonard Till John; Madeleine de Vercheres, Quebec; the explorer Fraser, in New West South African memorials, and many others. His most popular work is the statue to Maisonneuve, the founder of Montreal, in the Place d' that city. Here Hebert's vision and abandon are seen in highest development. He of the use of subordinate figures in this instance the group of pioneers give a sentiment to the dashing new above. This is an advance upon the stilted figures of Salaberry in the sleepy the Richelieu, and is the illustration of the industry and perseverance of the sculptor.

Augustine Belanger, M.M., has been killed in action. He enlisted with Colonel Hay's battalion and was first wounded in June last year. He was a despatch carrier and received the Military Medal for faithful and brilliant work performed while the battalion was under fire. Nearly 100 Indians have left the Thunder Bay District with the 52nd, 94th, and 141st Battalions. Of the 20 who left with the 52nd, under the late Lieut.-Colonel Hay, of Quebec, five have been killed, and all but two have been wounded.

The DeLaronde family of Nipigon sent four soldiers to France. Dennis was killed in action in June, 1916; Alex. was wounded and sent home, but re-enlisted at the first opportunity; Joseph won the Military Medal for holding a trench with a machine gun after his companions were killed. Pte. Alex. Chief has been wounded three times. Pte. Rod Cameron was one of the crack shots in the Canadian army. Before leaving for France he defeated the best marksmen in 12 battalions. He was killed in action. Two other splendid snipers were Ambrose and Laurence Marten, of Nipigon. Laurence was killed in action and Ambrose was severely wounded. Pte. Simeon Oombash journeyed over 100 miles to enlist at Port Arthur. He could not speak a word of English, but turned out to be one of the best and smartest soldiers in the regiment.

Molybdenum is Valuable.

The more one knows about molybdenum the more one feels that Canada, which is the principal source of this metal, has in it a product quite as valuable as nickel, if not more so. Molybdenum is now used as a substitute for tungsten or vanadium in hardening steel, for which purpose its use is far more economical. It lengthens greatly the durability of gun-metal and armor plate. It is valuable in high explosives, and it has other uses in war. But this is not all. It takes the place of platinum in the compounding of chemicals used for dyes, while it has also been found effective as a support of the filament of electric lamps. Its possibilities, however, are only beginning to make themselves known.

Honored by Russians.

Major-General R. C. Uniacke, belonging to a noted Canadian soldier family, has been gazetted for a Russian decoration, Order of Saint Anne, First Class, with Swords. Uniacke previously was twice mentioned in despatches.

was hideous, awful—well, you know all about that!" and a shrug of the shoulders told all the unutterable horror of it.

"You are no longer a human being if you're in occupied territory," she went on. "The second coming of the Germans, on February 11, 1915, sounded like a nightmare. They had just won the great battle of Augustowa and rounded up 40,000 Russians."

"When the Germans arrived at my home I said, 'I'm an American; you can't intimidate me.' Next day the prisoners began to arrive. What hideousness! What terrible sights! Men were driven along through the streets like dogs in the slush. Russians were lashed to the guns. They clubbed them; they killed them. For punishment some of them were shut for two weeks in a church without food and water. No; they did not all die. A few came out—a very few."

"Oh, if people could only know about life under Prussian rule. Girls disappeared. Sometimes they were never seen again. Sometimes they did come back—unrecognizable. Occasionally their masters led them out for an airing, to keep them alive, just like animals."

"The German idea is to rule by terror. Every day was a lifetime. Children died like flies from disease. They tied the Russian priest and Jewish rabbi together and dragged them down the street. Some Russian nuns were imprisoned there. Their sufferings were awful."

The German system is curious, according to the Countess. The officers are severe beyond measure with their men, but at times give them permission to indulge in unlicensed quantities of liquor, which makes them insane and commit acts of cruelty to the conquered people.

At last, after seven and a half months of horror, the countess secured leave to go to Berlin. When the military train in which she traveled reached Margrabowa, near Berlin, she and her children were taken out on the platform. There was not even a place to sit down. One of her children lay almost dying in her arms. "Poor little dearie," she murmured, forgetting herself. "Englishwoman?" shrieked a German woman standing near. "Not English, but American," she replied, but they cursed and spat on her. "If they ever start a revolution in Germany," she remarked, "the women will be fiends."

In Berlin she was identified as an American by a member of the Embassy who had heard her sing the American National Anthem nine years before at an American Thanksgiving dinner in Berlin. Small things often change fate. She had to destroy the copy of her marriage certificate, which stated her Canadian birth.

During 1916 the visitors to the Zoological Gardens, London, numbered 7,084,249.

People Who Do Not Whistle.

Arabia must be a heaven for those whose lives are made a burden to them by the whistler. The Arab maintains that a whistler's mouth cannot be purified for forty days and nights, and they assert of the whistler that Satan has touched his body and caused him to produce the offensive sound. Then there are the natives of the Tonga islands, Polynesia, who hold that it is a sin to whistle, as it is an act disrespectful to God. Even in some districts in north Germany villagers declare that if one whistles in the evening it makes the angels weep.

Admiral Sims
of Port Hope

WHEN it was announced that the commander of the first American naval unit to take the seas
against Germany had been born in Port Hope, a New York newspaper
commented upon the happy augury.
Canadians will take an especial interest in the fortunes of the American destroyer squadron, now cooperating with the British fleet in the North Sea, because Vice-Admiral Sims is a Canadian by birth, and first saw the light of day in the Ontario town, Port Hope. Apart altogether from auguries and sentimental interest, the fact remains that Sims is one of the best men in the American navy. He had no sooner arrived overseas than he was asked by the British authorities how soon
he and his ships would be ready for business. "We can start any time," replied Sims, and thus provided a slogan for the American navy which will be treasured with Jones' immortal, "We haven't begun to fight yet," when he was asked to surrender, and Dewey's remark which ushered in the Battle of Manila
Bay, "You may fire when ready, Gridley."

Though Sims, as remarked, is a Canadian by birth, there is no other man in the American navy who would be selected as better representing the traditions of that fleet.
In other navies he might be not so much at home. He has been insubordinate more than once. He has had the distinction of being officially rebuked by the President of the United States. He has made reports and recommendations without regard for precedent and official routine. But he has made good. In the United States navy and elsewhere much is forgiven the man who "comes across." Literally he has come across in the present war, and when it is his good fortune to meet the German navy or any fragment of it he may be counted on to strike as hard and as audaciously as Admiral Beatty. It will not be his fault if the war ends without giving the American navy an opportunity to show that it is in the fight, hook, line, and sink.

Until a very short time ago Sims was a mere captain. Nevertheless,
at home and abroad he was better known than some of those who had higher rank. He was a familiar
grad. He was also a popular one,
and when he came to a foreign port
it was natural that he should be entertained at an official banquet. A few years ago on one of these occasions in London Captain Sims made the remark that if ever the existence of the British Empire was threatened the United States could be counted on to give every dollar, every drop of blood to preserve it. It was another American seaman who made the significant remark about blood being thicker than water, referring to the same contingency. However, Sims was reproved. He was not removed. Events have justified him.
He is now "over there" to make good his promise.

The honor conferred upon him —
and there is no a commander, an

A BRILLIANT CAREER

GENERAL A. W. CURRIE HAS NEVER LOST A TRENCH.

FROM a humble position in a little-known Middlesex county village to commander of the Canadian forces in France, the men who "saved the situation" in the second battle of Ypres—that is the brilliant record
of Major-General Arthur William Currie.

Major-General Currie was born
forty-two years ago in the village of Napperton, which apparently is not considered important enough to be listed in the Canadian Almanac. It lies some miles west of the town of Strathroy, in the West riding of Middlesex, and not far from the dividing line between Middlesex and Lambton counties.

The son of William Currie and Jane Garner, he was educated at the Strathroy Collegiate Institute, and at the age of eighteen he left Ontario to seek his fortune in British Columbia. Arriving at Sidney, B.C., in 1893, he secured a precarious living in the position of teacher in the public school of that village. After some years in that profession he entered the real estate business, and later became head of the firm of Currie & Power, real estate agents,
Victoria, B.C.

While in British Columbia he identified himself with the 5th Regiment of the Canadian Garrison Artillery, with which he served for fourteen years. Leaving the artillery, he joined a Highland regiment in Victoria, which is allied with one of the famous regiments of Highlanders in Scotland. He took a keen interest in all matters affecting the militia, and soon became Lieutenant-Colonel of his regiment, the 50th, of Victoria. He also became President of the British Columbia
Rifle Association in 1907, and retained that position for many years.
Rifle-shooting was his recreation.

He married in 1901 Miss L. S.
Chatsworth-Musters of Victoria. Before going to the front he was a prominent Liberal, an Anglican, and a member of the Masonic Order.

Major-General Currie was among the first Canadians to volunteer for active service when the war broke out, and immediately orders were received for the Canadian volunteers to mobilize at Valcartier he entrained with his Highland regiment for the great concentration camp in Quebec. Shortly after reaching Valcartier
he was promoted to the rank of Brigadier-General in command of the Second Infantry Brigade, and it was in that position he went to Salisbury
Plain and eventually to the firing line.

There are few Canadians who do not know the part taken by the Canadians in the second battle of Ypres, their first big engagement after reaching Flanders. General Currie's brigade, which was in the hardest fighting of that terrific struggle, was composed of the 5th, 7th, 8th, and 10th Battalions. His conduct was such that the King made him a Com-

dian Highland Brigade had changed its position it became necessary for him to repeat the tactical manoeuvres of the 3rd Brigade against overwhelming odds. It is written of him that "in the very crisis of this immense struggle he held his line of trenches from Thursday at 5 o'clock till Sunday afternoon. And on Sunday afternoon he had not abandoned
his trenches. There were none left.
They had been obliterated by the artillery. He withdrew his undefeated troops from the fragments of his field fortifications, and the hearts of his men were as completely unbroken as the parapets of his trenches were completely broken."

Some months later, in September, 1915, General Currie succeeded General Alderson as General Officer Commanding the 1st Canadian Division,
the operations of which he has since directed with the same skill, gallantry, and determination which he exhibited at Ypres. General Currie's division won more glory and victories at the Somme, when at Courcellette and Thiepval his troops proved just as brilliant and just as successful in the offensive as they were on the defensive in the second battle of Ypres. The same division,
with much fresh blood, of course,
has again performed a brilliant feat
of arms in the capture of Vimy Ridge. It is General Currie's proud boast that his division "has never lost a trench."

A Canadian in Africa.

That the sun does not set on the fighting Canadians is well illustrated every day. Here is a story of a western Ontario boy, who is doing his bit in German East Africa. He enlisted when less than seventeen,
one of the brave ones who went
early and before he was of legal age.
Pte. W. W. Yeates is the son of C.
L. Yeates of Sarnia. He has travelled 14,000 miles to get to his fighting zone, and he has paid the price in African hospitals, suffering from fever and chills incident to life in the jungle.

Writing home, young Yeates, who is not yet twenty, tells of thrilling experiences in and about the Lake Victoria-Nyanza country.

"It is not an uncommon thing,"
he writes, "for us to lose a man in

The honor conferred upon him — and there is no a commander, an admiral, or a captain in the American navy who does not envy him the honor—astonished some of those who knew his history. It was not that he was not efficient, but that he had been too outspoken. He had not hesitated to say what he thought, and even if his communications were privileged, as when he was called as a witness before a Congressional committee, he had not sought to say the pleasing, soporific thing, the thing that his superiors would naturally approve. He spoke of the defects of the American navy. He did not say that it could "lick creation." He told the truth as he saw it. Even the wonderful improvement that was made in American naval gunnery under his direction, he did not claim credit for. He said it was due to the theories of "that wonderful man, Vice-Admiral Sir Percy Scott, of the British navy." He did not give the American eagle a half chance to crow.

When he was in China as a lieutenant he came across the British navy and studied its gunnery methods. Instead of reporting his observations to the man immediately over him, and trusting that he would in the course of time forward the criticism to the proper authorities, he wrote directly to the President of the United States. This was no way to make himself popular with his superiors; but by a chance it happened that the American President was looking for just such first-hand information, and presently Sims was recalled and given charge of the gunnery of the American navy. Later on he was entrusted with the destroyed command. He continued to speak out and criticize what he believed to be wrong, and he has continued ever since. Events have shown that Sims, as a rule, was right, that he was wedded to the navy, that he thought and said nothing that had not the welfare of the American navy as its mainspring. So he has arrived. Here's luck to Sims, of Port Hope, Ontario!

Our Sleep.

As a race we sleep too little. An infant's life is nearly all sleep. Gradually as the child grows older the hours of sleep are shortened. Youth till the age of twenty is reached requires fully ten hours' sleep. Although nature demands fewer hours' sleep in summer than in winter, it has been proved that eight hours of sleep are required for the average adult in good health. By this is meant not simply eight hours in bed, but that amount of good, sound, restful sleep night after night. Our power to work is intimately related to our ability to sleep, and there is no more reliable indication of sound health than the capacity to sleep naturally, and the more active and energetic the waking life the deeper the sleep.

So horrified and revolted was I at this discovery that I hardly roused myself to greet the men. I looked with aversion and yet with a certain fascination on the serene, clear features of these scalp takers. Yet, since in the days following this aversion could not but wear away in face of the simplicity and straightforwardness of the frontiersmen, I had to acknowledge that the atrocious deed was more a product of custom than of natural barbarity.

Though these Indian troubles had nothing to do with it, nevertheless they marked the beginning of our change of luck. We suffered no definite misfortunes, but these things did not go well. The slight malarial attack of Don Gaspar was the first of an annoying series. I suppose we had all been inoculated on the marshes of the Sacramento, and the disease had remained latent in our systems. The hard work in the open air had kept us healthy, but the fever only awaited the favorable moment of depression or of overwork. The combination of ice cold water around our legs and burning sun on our heads was not the best in the world. Fortunately Yank, who came from an agree country, had had foresight enough to bring a supply of quinine. For two months one or the other of us was ailing, and once for a few days five of us were down!

Then, too, I think the zest of the game was palling on us a little, strange as it may seem. We could dig gold from the soil almost at will. It would seem that this single fact would keep normally acquisitive men keyed to a high pitch of endeavor all the time, but it was not so. I suppose we needed a vacation. We began to discuss what we would do when we should see the city again. No one for a moment dreamed that we should quit these rich diggings. We were here to make our fortunes, and the fortunes seemed to be ready for the making. Only, the novelty having passed, it had become hard work, just like the making of any other kind of a fortune.

The Pine family camped below us, used our corral at our invitation and set placidly to work. They were typical frontiersmen and settled down in the well built cabin which they quickly ran up as though they meant to make of it a permanent home. For two months, which brought us up to the end of July, they lived a regular and leisurely life. Then one morning, without any warning at all, they rode over to our cabin, leading their horses, fully packed. Old man Pine explained, while his five tall, steady eyed sons sat their horses quite immobile in the Accordingly we pushed our mounts hard. Unhindered by pack animals, and aided by knowledge of the route, we made great progress. By noon we had passed the meadow of our night's camp. After a hasty lunch we accompanied our men a few miles farther, then said farewell and godspeed and hurried back in order to reach home before sunset.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Robbery.

WE cooked ourselves a meal and built ourselves a fire. About midnight we heard the sounds of horses rapidly approaching. Immediately we leaped from our bunks and seized our rifles, peering anxiously into the darkness. A moment later, however, we were reassured by a shrill whistle peculiar to Buck Barry, and a moment later he and Don Gaspar rode into camp.

We assailed them with a storm of questions—why had they returned? What had happened? Where was Yank? Had there been an accident?

Don Gaspar, who appeared very weary and depressed, shook his head sadly. Barry looked at us savagely from beneath his brows.

"The gold is gone, and that's an end of it!" he growled.

At these words a careful, dead silence fell on us all. The situation had suddenly become too serious for hasty treatment. We felt instinctively that a wrong word might do irreparable damage. But in our hearts suspicion and anger and dull hatred leaped to life full grown. We tightened our belts, as it were, and clamped our elbows to our sides and became wary, watching with unfriendly eyes. Johnny alone opened his lips.

"Lost? I don't believe it!" he cried. Barry cast an ugly look at him, but said nothing. We all saw that look.

"Where's Yank?" I asked.

"Dead by now, I suppose," flung back Barry.

"Good God!" I cried, and under my breath, "Then you've murdered him!"

I don't know whether Barry heard me or not, and at the time I did not much care. His sullen eye was resting on one after the other of us as we stood there in the firelight. Every face was angry and suspicious. Barry flung himself from his horse, tore the pad from its back, slapped it on the flank and turned away, reckless of where it went. He cut himself a steak and set to cooking his food, an uncompromising shoulder turned in our direction. Nor did he open his mouth to utter another word until the general discussion of the robber Barry had shot. It proved to be a Mexican well known to them all and suspected to be a member of Andreas Aljo's celebrated band. They inquired for the dead horse's rider.

"And then, for the first time," said Don Gaspar, "we think of him. He went down with his horse. But now he was gone and also the horse of Senor Yank. But I think he crawled in the chaparral and that the horse of Senor Yank run away with the other horse of the dead man."

We saw the futility of our first instinctive flare of suspicion. It was obvious that if Don Gaspar and Buck Barry had intended treachery they would never have returned to us. I think that, curiously enough, we were unreasonably a little sorry for this. It would have been satisfactory to have had something definite to antagonize. As it was, we sat humped around our fire until morning.

With daylight we began to get a grip on ourselves a little. I felt strongly that I should see to Yank and so announced. Johnny at once offered to accompany me. While we were talking over the future prospects McNally came over to us, saying:

"The boys are pretty well agreed that we ought to divide up what gold is left and let each man take care of his own share. Are you agreeable?"

We instantly assented. The scales were brought out, and the division began. It consumed most of the morning and was productive of much squabbling, in which, however, we took no part. Our share, including Yank's, with which we were intrusted, came to about thirty-one pounds, a value of about $7,000.

By noon we had packed our goods, and by night we had broken the back of our return journey.

We found a full grown town where we had left a few tents and miners' cabins. Its main street ran either side the deep dust of the immigrant trail and consisted of the usual shanties, canvas shacks and log structures, with rather more than the customary allowance of tin cans, old clothes, worn-out boots and empty barrels kicking around. The diggings were in the gulch below the road, but the streets of the town, and especially the shady sides of the buildings, were numerously furnished with lounging men.

Don Gaspar led the way for a short

Yank closed his eyes and groaned. The doctor resumed his work, picked up his beaver hat.

He pouched the gold dust that he shook into the palm of his left a guess, bowed formally to each in turn, picked up his bag and edged rigidly erect, the fine red crawling and eddying at his feet.

Then we held a council of five of us. Don Gaspar announced intention of returning to his ranch the south.

two months, which brought us up to the end of July, they lived a regular and leisurely life. Then one morning, without any warning at all, they rode over to our cabin, leading their horses, fully packed. Old man Pine explained, while his five tall, steady eyed sons sat their horses quite immobile, in the background, that they had dug enough gold for their necessities, and that they were now going down to the lower country to pick out some good land. These men were the very first I happened to meet who had come into the country with a definite idea of settling.

After the departure of this strong force, began our discussions as to the safeguarding of our gold. It had now reached a very considerable sum—somewhere near $35,000, as I remember. Bagsby was very uneasy at its presence in camp.

Buck Barry brought up strongly the advisability of sending our treasure out to a safe place. His argument was given point by the arrival in camp one evening of three evil looking Mexicans, shabbily clothed, but well armed, and mounted on beautiful horses. We fed them well, but saw to the caps of our revolvers and the security of our corral before turning in for the night. In the morning they departed before we were stirring, without so much as a word of thanks. These mysterious visitors had given us no faintest inkling of their business or destination. Don Gaspar stated flatly that they had come to spy us out, having heard of our presence in the valley from the Indians.

"And I told them," said he triumphantly, "that essoon we would be sent out for the food."

He went on to argue that thus he had prepared their minds for the fact that pack horses would soon be going out. By distributing the gold its presence would be unsuspected.

I suggested a strong guard, but both Bagsby and Don Gaspar opposed me.

"There's enough of these yere robbers to git us anyhow, even if we all went," said Bagsby, "and that's why I want to send the stuff out now. The place they'll tackle will be right yere, if they tackle anything at all!"

I will not weary you with the pros and cons. At the time I thought, and I still think, the whole arrangement most ill advised; but against me was the united opinion of nearly the whole camp, including the most level headed members of my own party. It was finally agreed that Yank, Buck Barry and Don Gaspar should take out the gold.

They started very early in the morning, carrying the treasure in saddle bags and across the horns of the saddle. I argued that Yank rode much the lightest and had the strongest horse, and managed to get the others to confide to him a full half of the metal. At the last moment we had modified the original plan to suit everybody. The horsemen encumbered by pack animals were to push on as rapidly as possible in order to reach by nightfall the settlement where dwelt the Italian friend. Once there they could feel themselves reasonably safe. Johnny, Missouri Jones and I would ride with them until noon as a sort of escort for the uninhabited portion of the journey. By that hour we figured we should have reached the outskirts of the regular diggings, where, our experience told us, our companions would be safe.

himself on his horse, tore the pail from its back, slapped it on the flank and turned away, reckless of where it went. He cut himself a steak and set to cooking his food, an uncompromising shoulder turned in our direction. Nor did he open his mouth to utter another word until the general discussion later in the evening. Don Gaspar, who owned the only riding saddle, unharnessed his horse, led it to water, knee haltered it and turned it loose to graze. While he was gone no one spoke, but we glanced at each other darkly. He turned, sat down by the fire, rolled himself a cigarette and volunteered his story.

"My fren'," said he, with a directness and succinctness utterly foreign to his everyday speech, "you want to know what happen'. Ver' well, it was like this."

He told us that after we had left them they hurried on as fast as possible in order to reach the settled country. Owing to the excellence of his animal he was generally some distance in advance. At one point, stopping on a slight elevation to allow them to catch up, he looked back in time to see two men on horseback emerge from the chaparral just behind his companions.

Don Gaspar shouted and leaped from his saddle, but before the warning had reached the others a riata from the hand of one of the men had fallen with deadly accuracy around Yank's arms and body, jerking him violently from the saddle. The thrower whirled his horse to drag his victim, Don Gaspar fired and by great good luck shot the animal through the brain. It fell in a heap, pinning its rider beneath it. In the meantime Barry had leaped to the ground and from behind the shelter of his horse had shot the first robber through the body. Our two companions now drew together and took refuge behind some large rocks, preparing to receive the charge of a band of half dozen who now appeared. The situation looked desperate. Don Gaspar fired and missed. He was never anything of a marksman, and his first shot must have been a great piece of luck. Barry held his fire. The robbers each discharged his rifle, but harmlessly. Then just as they seemed about to charge in they whirled their horses and made off into the brush.

"We could not tell the why," observed Don Gaspar.

The two men did not speculate, but ran out to where Yank lay, apparently dead, his arms still bound close to his body by the noose of the riata. Barry cut the rope with his bowie knife, and they rolled him over. They found he still breathed, but that, beside the shock of his violent fall, he had been badly trampled by the horses. After a moment he came to consciousness, but when they attempted to lift him upright they found that his leg was broken.

At this moment they heard the sound of voices and, looking up, saw coming from the other direction a band of a dozen men, half of whom were on horseback and all of whom were armed. This looked serious.

"We got behind the rock," said Don Gaspar, "but we think to ourself our goose is cook."

The newcomers, however, proved to be miners who had heard the shots and who now came hurrying up. Evidently the robbers had caught sight or sound of their approach. They were much interested in the state of affairs, examined the horse Don Gaspar had killed, searched for and found the body lowance of tin cans, old clothes, worn-out boots and empty barrels kicking around. The diggings were in the gulch below the road, but the streets of the town, and especially the shady sides of the buildings, were unusually furnished with lounging men.

Don Gaspar led the way for a short distance along the wagon road. On the outskirts of the settlement he turned aside to a small log cabin supplemented by a brush lean-to. A long string of bright red peppers hung down the face of it. To our knock came a very fat, rather dirty but exceedingly pleasant faced woman with glossy black hair, parted smoothly, and soft black eyes. She opened the door only the fraction of an inch at first, but instantly recognized Don Gaspar and threw it wide.

To our great relief, we found Yank very much alive. He greeted us rather feebly, but with satisfaction. We found that he had been kindly cared for and that the surface wounds and bruises from the horses' hoofs had been treated with some skill.

"But I reckon I'm hurt some inside," he whispered with difficulty, "for I can't breathe easy, and I can't eat nothin' but soup."

The broken leg too had been bound up after a fashion, but it was badly swollen above and below the bandages.

"He ought to have a doctor," said I positively. "There's no doubt of that. There must be some among the miners. There generally is. I'm going to see if I can find one."

I returned to town and hunted up the beefy, red faced hotel keeper, who had impressed me as being an honest man.

"Yes, there's a doctor," said he, "a mighty good one. He went by here a little while ago. Name's Dr. Rankin. I'll rustle him out for you. Oh, you Pete!" he shouted into the interior of the building.

A moment's shuffling about preceded the appearance of a negro boy of twelve or fourteen.

"Yes, sah."

"Go find Dr. Rankin and bring him here right away. Tell him a gentleman wants him."

Shortly the negro boy reappeared, closely followed by a man with a blue coat and white beaver hat, whom I had taken for an eccentric gambler. This man walked slowly up to face me.

"Well, sir?" he demanded. "I am told I can be of service. In what way?"

His piercing black eye held mine with a certain high arrogance.

"Professionally, doctor," I replied. "A friend of mine is lying badly hurt in a nearby hut."

For a barely appreciable instant his eye held mine after I had ceased speaking, as though he was appraising me. Then he bowed with old fashioned courtesy.

"At your service, sir," said he. "Pete, you black rascal, get my bag, and get it quick."

The little negro, who had stood by obviously worshiping, broke into a grin and darted into the hotel, almost instantly reappearing with a regulation professional satchel.

"At your service, sir," repeated Dr. Rankin.

Arrived at the hut of the Morona, for that it seemed the name of our host and hostess, Dr. Rankin laid aside his furry beaver hat, walked directly to the side of the bunk on which Yank lay and began his examination without vouchsafing anything or saysaid he.

Bagsby, too, said he thought he just ride down as far as Sutter's there to lay in a supply of powder ball for a trip in the mountains.

"I kind of want to git up a bar fight," said he. "If I t there was a ghost of a show them robbers for you boys I'd st help you scout for them, but ain't a show in the world. I had a good three days' start."

After shaking hands with us and again obtaining promise we should all surely meet in San cisco or Monterey they mounted took their departure in order well clear of the settlement nightfall.

When they had gone Yank his eyes from the apparent sle which he had fallen.

man's, the gambling places larger and with some slight attempt at San Francisco splendor—that is to say, there were large gilt framed mirrors on the walls, nude pictures and in some cases a stage for musical performers. One of the three stores was devoted entirely to clothing and "notions," to us a new departure in specialization. We were sadly in need of garments, so we entered and were at once met by a very oily, suave specimen of the chosen people. When we had escaped from this robber's den we looked at each other in humorous dismay.

"Glad Yank don't need clothes, any way," said Johnny.

We were, it will be remembered, out of provisions, so we entered also one of the general stores to lay in a small supply. The proprietor proved to be an old friend, Jones, the storekeeper at Hangman's.

"Which," said Johnny shrewdly, "is a sad commentary on the decline of the diggings at Hangman's."

Jones was evidently prosperous and doing business on a much larger scale than at the old place, for in his commodious building were quantities of goods displayed and many barrels and boxes still unopened. He did not recognize us, of course, and we had to await the completion of a tale he was telling a group perched on the counters and on the boxes.

We turned into the entrance of the hotel, to find ourselves in the well remembered long, low room wherein we had spent the evening a few months before. It was now furnished with a bar, the flimsy partitions had been knocked out, and evidently additions had been constructed beyond the various closed doors.

The man behind the bar looked vaguely familiar to me, but I could not place him.

"Where's the proprietor of this place?" I asked him.

He indicated a short, blowsy, truculent looking individual who was at the moment staring out the window.

"There used to be an Italian"—I began.

The barkeeper uttered a short barking laugh as he turned to attend to a customer.

"He found the climate bad for his heart and sold out," said he.

On the wall opposite was posted a number of printed and written handbills. We stopped idly to examine them. They had in general to do with lost property, stolen horses and rewards for the apprehension of various individuals. One struck us in particular. It was issued by a citizens' committee of San Francisco and announced a general reward for the capture of any member of the "Hounds."

"Looks as if they'd got tired of that gang down there," Johnny observed. "They were ruling the roost when we left. Do you know, I saw one of those fellows this afternoon—perhaps you remember him—a man with a queer sort of blue scar over one cheekbone. I swear I saw him in San Francisco. There's our chance to make some money, Jim."

The proprietor of the hotel turned to look at Johnny curiously, and several of the loafers drinking at the bar glanced in the direction of his clear young voice. We went on reading and enjoying the notices, some of which were very quaint. Suddenly the door burst open to admit a big man followed closely by a motley rabble. Johnny studied awhile.

"Where?"

"I don't believe I'll answer that question," replied Johnny slowly.

"But somewhere back in the hills?" persisted Randall.

"Somewhere back in the hills," agreed Johnny.

of the loafers drinking at the bar glanced in the direction of his clear young voice. We went on reading and enjoying the notices, some of which were very quaint. Suddenly the door burst open to admit a big man followed closely by a motley rabble. The leader was a red faced, burly, whiskered individual, with a red beard and matted hair. As he turned I saw a star shaped blue scar above his cheek-bone.

"Where's the blamed cur that is going to make some money out of arresting me?" he roared, swinging his huge form ostentatiously toward the center of the room.

I confessed I was agast and completely at a loss. A row was evidently unavoidable, and the odds were against us. Almost at the instant the door came open Johnny, without waiting for hostile demonstration, jerked his two revolvers from their holsters. With one bound he reached the center of the room and thrust the muzzles beneath the bully's nose. His black eyes were snapping.

"Shut up, you 'Hound!'" he said in a low, even voice. "I wouldn't condescend to make money out of your miserable carcass, except at a glue factory. And if you or your friends so much as wink an eyelid I'll put you in shape for it."

Caught absolutely by surprise, the "Hound" stared fascinated into the pistol barrels, his jaw dropped, his face redder than ever, his eyes ridiculously protruding. I had recovered my wits and had backed against the bulletin board, a revolver in either hand, keeping an eye on the general company. Those who had burst in with the bully had stopped frozen in their tracks. The others were interested, but not particularly excited.

"I'm going to stay in this camp," Johnny advised crisply, "and I'm not going to be bothered by big bluffs like you. I warn you, and all like you, to let me alone and keep away from me. You stay in camp, or you can leave camp, just as you please, but I warn you that I shoot you next time I lay eyes on you. Now, about faces! March!"

Johnny's voice had an edge of steel. The big man obeyed orders implicitly. He turned slowly and sneaked out the door. His followers shambled toward the bar. Johnny passed them rather contemptuously under the review of his snapping eyes, and they shambled a trifle faster. Then with elaborate nonchalance we sauntered out.

"My Lord, Johnny," I cried when we had reached the street, "that was fine! I didn't know you had it in you!"

"What a stupid, useless mess!" he cried. "The minute that fellow came into the room I saw we were let in for a row; so I went at it quick before he had got organized. He didn't expect that. He thought he'd have to work us into it."

"It certainly got him," said I. "But it just starts us all wrong here," complained Johnny. "We are marked men."

We went out to see Yank, with the full intention of spending the evening and cheering him up. He was dozing, restless, waking and sleeping by fits and starts. We sat around in the awkward fashion peculiar to very young boys in the sickroom, and then, to our vast relief, were shoved out by Senora Morena. With her we held a whispered conversation outside, and completed satisfactory arrangements for Yank's keep. She was a chuckling, easy going, motherly sort of creature, and we were very lucky to have her. Then we returned in the gathering dusk to our camp under the trees across the way.

A man rose from a seat against a tree trunk.

"Good evenin', stranger," said he.

"Good evening," responded Johnny guardedly.

"You are the man who stuck up Scarface Charley in Morton's place, ain't you?"

"What's that to you?" replied Johnny. "Are you a friend of his?"

His habitual air of young carelessness had fallen from him. His eye was steady and frosty, his face set in stern lines. Before my wondering eyes he had grown ten years older in the last six hours. The other was lounging toward us—a short, slight man, with flaxen moustache and eyebrows, a colorless face, pale blue eyes and a bald forehead from which the hat had been pushed back. He was chewing a straw.

"Well, I was just inquiren' in a friendly sort of way," replied the newcomer peaceably.

"I don't know you," stated Johnny shortly, "nor who you're friends to, nor your camp. I deny your right to ask questions. Good night."

"Well, good night," agreed the other, still peaceable. "I reckon I gather considerable about you, anyhow." He turned away. "I had a notion from what I heard that you was sort of picked on, and I dropped round sort of friendly like, but Lord love you! I don't care how many of you desperadoes kill each other. Go to it, and good riddance!" He cast his pale blue eyes on Johnny's rigid figure. "Also go to the dickens!" he remarked dispassionately.

Johnny stared at him, puzzled.

"Hold on!" he called after a moment. "Then you're not a friend of this Hound?"

The stranger turned in slow surprise.

"Me? What are you talking about?"

He looked from one to the other of us, then returned the few steps he had taken. "I believe you don't know me. I'm Randall, Danny Randall."

"Yes?" puzzled Johnny.

"Of Sonoma," added Randall.

"I suppose I should know you, but I'm afraid I don't," confessed Johnny.

Randall turned back to the tree beneath which lay our effects.

"I believe I'll just have a cup of coffee with you boys," said he.

We blew up the fire, scoured the frying pan, made ourselves food. Randall brought a pail of water. We all ate together, without much conversation, then lit our pipes and piled on dry wood to make a brighter friendship fire.

"Now, boys," said Randall, "I'm going to ask you some questions, and you can answer me or not, just as you please. Only I'll say it isn't just curiosity."

Johnny, who was studying him covertly from beneath the shadow of his hat, nodded briefly, but said nothing.

Charley, and I wanted to see whether you were just another fighting desperado or an honest man. Well, I'm satisfied. I'm not going to ask you if you have much gold with you, for you wouldn't tell me, but if you have keep it with you. If you don't you'll lose it. Keep in the middle of the road and out of dark places. This is a tough camp, but there are a lot of us good men, too, and my business is to get us all to know each other. Things are getting bad, and we've got to get together. That's why I came up to see you. Are you handy with a gun?" he asked abruptly.

"Fair," said Johnny.

"You need to be. Let's see if you are. Stand up. Try to get the draw on me. Now!"

Indian Legends.

Many are the tribes of Red Men who have occupied British America, from Labrador and the frozen sea to the Pacific. And many were the myths and legends by which they sought to answer the immemorial longings of the finite for the infinite. Through them all, one finds the same questionings, however different the expressions. And as it seemed impossible to the Red Man that the "Someone" who sent the grateful summer and the dreaded winter could be the same power, there soon developed the belief that the world was governed by two forces—the beneficent and the cruel; that "universal belief in both good and evil" which underlies the mythologies of all the races of the earth. Their myths and legends are the Red Man's answer to the questionings, old as is human life. And as the braves listened to the recital of these stories "of the days of the grandfathers in the beginning of the newness of things," sitting around their teepee fires through the long winter evenings, nothing in them was beyond credence to their untutored minds; "nothing was too large or too small to come within the bounds of their beliefs or within the play of their fancy."

The "creation" myths of the various tribes; the origin of light and of fire; the destruction of the world by fire; why the sun is bright and the moon pale; the origin of the stars; why lightning so often strikes trees; the origin of animals and of birds; how death came into the world, are among the subjects of these quaint tales. And beside their primitive charm, they disclose many curious analogies with the myths of ancient Greece; added proofs of the theory of the common origin of all. Perhaps the Cree legend of the origin of race illustrates as well as any the laconic directness of the stories. "When Great One made mankind he first made an earth oven. Then he modelled a man of clay and put him in to bake. He was not baked enough and came out white. Great One tried again, but this time he baked the man too long. He came out black. The third time Great One baked the man just the correct time and he came out red. That is why different races have different colors."

INSURING POTATO CROPS.

Provision Should Be Made For Controlling Disease and Pests.

Potatoes should follow a clover sod rather than timothy or other grass sod. If the fields are not plowed in the fall or winter plowing should be done as early in the spring as possible. Prepare a good mellow seed bed, says Pennsylvania Agricultural college.

If manure is used the well rotted is preferable. Fresh horse manure should not be used. Manure should be supplemented with acid phosphate at the rate of 400 to 600 pounds per acre. This may be applied in the row and mixed with the soil, or half of it may be broadcast and half applied in the row.

The best remedy for common scab is to disinfect the tubers by soaking them for two hours before they are cut in a solution of one pint of formalin to thirty gallons of water. Such disinfection is of little avail when potatoes are planted in a field which grew scabby potatoes the previous year since the disease organism lives over in the soil.

Cut the tubers to the same size of piece, planting the small ones whole. The rate of planting should be fifteen to twenty bushels when seed is at a normal price. With seed very high in price cut the pieces smaller and reduce the rate per acre to ten bushels.

Early varieties cannot be recommended except for home use. The most commonly grown of these are Irish Cobbler and Early Ohio. For the main crop grow late or medium late varieties. Standard main crop varieties recommended for Pennsylvania by the Pennsylvania State college are Green Mountain, Carman No. 3 and Sir Walter Raleigh. Good, locally grown seed of adapted varieties should be planted.

Until the vines are large the surface soil should be kept loose by frequent cultivations. The field should be harrowed once or twice with a spike tooth harrow before the potatoes are up. When the stalks are small the cultivations may be fairly deep, but the later ones should be shallow.

Provision must be made for controlling the common potato beetles. Paris green, three-fourths of a pound to fifty gallons of water or of bordeaux mixture; arsenate of lead paste at the rate of three pounds or arsenate of lead powder at the rate of one and one-half pounds should be used for this purpose. Early and late blight may be prevented by spraying with bordeaux mixture.

TWO POTATO CROPS.

Intensive potato culture may be practiced in this year of food shortage by planting a late crop after clover is cut or strawberries are picked. Sun sprouted seed is required for the second crop, according to gardeners at the Ohio experiment station.

For such planting the potatoes make quick growth if sprouted fresh leaf compost upon this and other root and leafy garden crops. Add nitrogenous fertilizer when the potatoes are not planted on sod. If stable manure is used plow under. If a drillable substance, such as tankage, dried fish, etc., apply at planting time. Do not rely upon the peat, rock or "humus" fertilizers now offered to supply nitrogen nor upon hair, horse hoof parings, leather scrap and similar materials.

Last, but not least, do your best to give the crop a good start.

Plant Swiss Chard.

Plant some Swiss chard this season. It will grow under unfavorable climatic conditions, and the leaves will remain tender throughout the season. Swiss chard is a form of the beet, the foliage developing more prominently than the roots. The wrinkled leaves may be used as greens, or the hard stalks may be cooked and served like asparagus. Chard has as much food value as spinach and tastes much the same. It is more easily prepared for the table, for the leaves are large and easily cleaned. Plant same as beets.

Irish Potatoes.

Irish potatoes should be planted as soon as the soil conditions will permit. Plant in rows about three feet wide and place the tubers ten to twelve inches apart in the row. Cover to the depth of about four inches. If the sprouts reach the surface too early and there is still danger of frost they may be protected by covering with soil by running a furrow on either side of the row with a plow. Irish Cobbler, Bliss, Triumph and Early Ohio are good early varieties.—F. M. Rolfs, Oklahoma Agricultural College.

Salt and Charcoal For Hogs.

Salt and charcoal should be provided to furnish mineral matter for hogs, says Farm and Fireside. They may be fed separately, but it is advisable to add salt to the charcoal, as it makes it more palatable and is especially good for hogs. Salt should be available at all times. It is best to keep it in an open shed where it can be protected from the weather. Charcoal is best fed from the hopper or self feeder to prevent needless waste.

MEAT BY THE HOG ROUTE.

The meat supply of the country can be increased more quickly by the "hog route" than by any other. The country's need to augment its supply is great, but prevailing high prices alone should be sufficient inducement to farmers to raise more hogs. The prospect of success never was brighter. The high prices ruling in all markets show that the demand for pork is in excess of the supply.—United States Department of Agriculture.

Sophie's Bertha Produces a Ton in Two Lactation Periods.

"Like begets like or the likeness of some ancestor." This great law of breeding is usually quoted at farmer gatherings and dairy meetings by experts to drive home to breeders the fact that in order to have the best kind of dairy cows one must mate animals of the best dairy strains. A remarkable instance of the application of this law is the case of Sophie's Bertha.

Sophie's Bertha is now world's champion junior three-year-old Jersey, having produced 14,954.2 pounds of milk, 829.54 pounds fat on a year's test started at three years and five months of age. Her dam, Lass LXVI. of Hood Farm, is the senior three-year-old champion, and her sire's dam, Sophie XIX. of Hood Farm, is the breed's highest producer—a champion out of a champion and by the son of a champion.

Sophie's Bertha's pedigree shows production in every line. Her sire, Pogis

SOPHIE'S BERTHA.

XCIX. of Hood farm, has twenty-four daughters in the Register of Merit, two of them champions (Sophie's Bertha and Sophie's Adora, junior four-year-old, 15,852.2 pounds of milk, 888 pounds of fat). Her dam, Lass LXVI. of Hood farm, after making a splendid two-year-old record, broke the world's record by producing 17,993.7 pounds of milk, 910.6 pounds of fat.

Sophie's Bertha is not unknown to the world's dairymen, for as a two-year-old she won a gold medal and second place in her class with a production of 13,242.8 pounds milk, 771.1 pounds fat.

Over 2,000 pounds of 80 per cent butter in the first two lactations is production extraordinary.

MONEY IN SILOS.

Farmers Should Plan For Next Winter Feeding.

Build silos! Economy demands that all crops be taken care of this year that can be turned into high priced meat or milk. Indications point to high priced feeds.

Every silo filled last fall in Kansas paid for itself in one season, and the chances are that similar results may be obtained by those who build silos this year, says A. S. Neale, specialist in dairying, division of extension, Kansas State Agricultural college.

For such planting the potatoes

When spread out in shallow

stubby green sprouts grow to

These potatoes may then be cut

NEED OF PHOSPHATES.

Acute Fertilizer Problem Faces the Farmer This Year.

The labor possibilities as the farmer now sees them will doubtless determine the acreage he will plant. But whatever area he plants it should be made, by all means at his command, to yield a full crop. The proper use of fertilizers is one of the best modes of insuring such crop. Every fertilizer expedient that can be helpfully applied should be used to this end.

A few suggestions for readjustment of fertilizer plans for the season may, however, apply to some cases.

First, remember that most soils lack available phosphoric acid to a greater extent than any other plant food required by the ordinary field crop. Nitrogen, especially on light lands recently under hood crops, is the next requirement. Potash is quite often useful on long cultivated soils, but is rarely the prime need, particularly on loamy and clay lands. Lands that have been fairly well dressed with potash in recent years still hold much of that dressing in a fairly available state. Sandy soils are the least retentive of the added potash.

Do not depend upon raw rock phosphate or even ground bone for this year's crops. Use acid rock phosphate. It is conceded by all authorities to be the form of phosphate most certain to bring a quick return.

If you have any potash fertilizers use them chiefly for potatoes, cabbage and other semigarden crops. Field crops, especially on land previously fertile, can ordinarily do very well for a period without potash dressings. Where salt cake or agricultural salt is available a dressing of 200 or 300 pounds an acre may help to make up for the absence of potash fertilizer.

Nitrate of soda and sulphate of ammonia are already scarce and high in price. Where available their best use is in hill or drill for giving the crop a good start and later as top dressings to promote better leaf and stalk growth. Twenty or thirty pounds to the acre of these fertilizers thus used will often give large returns.

Except where the sod and land are quite light corn on sod land usually requires little nitrogen beyond the soil supply. The same is true of potatoes except on light or gravelly soils. Concentrate such potash supplies as wood ashes, tobacco stalks and midribs and

Swine Have No Rivals as Consumers of Farm Byproducts.

No branch of live stock farming is more productive of satisfactory results than the raising of well bred swine if conducted with a reasonable care, according to the specialists of the bureau of animal industry, United States department of agriculture. Hogs fit into the modern scheme of farming on nearly every farm and are one of the most important animals to raise both for meat and for money. They require less labor, less equipment and less capital, make greater gains per hundred pounds of concentrates fed, reproduce themselves faster and in greater numbers and give a quicker "turn over" of money than any other animal except poultry. Farmers of the south and west particularly have awakened to the merits of the hog and are rapidly increasing their output of pork and their bank accounts.

The hog has no rival as a consumer of byproducts and numerous unmarketable materials which but for him might be wasted. Kitchen refuse not only from farms, but also from hotels and restaurants when cooked before being used makes an excellent feed.

The value of skimmilk as a hog feed is known on every farm, though not always fully appreciated. In the neighborhood of many large dairies pork production is a very prominent and lucrative supplement to the dairy industry.

To prevent tuberculosis all milk and milk products should be cooked before being fed to hogs. To control hog cholera use sanitary precautions and anti-hog cholera serum treatment.

Give your hog every chance to become meat.

The hog is also a large factor in cheapening the production of beef. Hogs are placed in the cattle feed lots to utilize the corn and other feeds the cattle have failed to digest and which otherwise would be wasted. Hogs following steers in many cases have increased the profit per steer by from $6 to $9. Hogs should not be allowed to follow dairy cattle unless the cattle are tuberculin tested.

Worms in Sheep.

Sheepmen having flocks infested with stomach worms and tapeworms may free the animals of such pests by treatment before turning out to spring pasture. For this purpose a drench of copper sulphate has been found most satisfactory in the flocks at the Ohio station. Two fluid ounces of a solution made by dissolving an ounce of copper sulphate (blue vitriol) in two quarts of water is sufficient for a yearling, and a two-year-old sheep needs three fluid ounces. A long necked bottle or a rubber tube and funnel may be used to give the dose. Most effective results follow when the sheep are fasted for a day both before and after treatment. Water should not be given for a few hours preceding and following the dosing.

Indications point to high priced feeds.

Every silo filled last fall in Kansas paid for itself in one season, and the chances are that similar results may be obtained by those who build silos this year, says A. S. Neale, specialist in dairying, division of extension, Kansas State Agricultural college.

The wide awake farmer is planning right now for next winter's feeding, and these plans should include silage. Indications are that more silos will be built the coming summer than in any previous year. Silo manufacturers are already receiving heavy orders. The farmer who intends to buy should order at once, while he who would build should be planning for labor or materials.

In addition to building a silo, an effort should be made to secure some good, dry roughage to go along with the silage, says Mr. Neale. Those who have alfalfa or clover need look no further than taking good care of these crops at the proper time. Those who do not have these should make an effort to get some other leguminous forage.

Deep Plowing Unprofitable.

Because plowing to a depth of seven and one-half inches has returned about the same yields and is much cheaper the Ohio experiment station does not recommend the use of a deep tilling or a subsoil plow. The expensive operation of plowing fifteen inches deep with a deep tilling plow has returned less than a bushel of corn and subsoiling only two bushels more than ordinary plowing as an average for six years. Oats following corn has returned three and a quarter bushels more on land plowed to ordinary depth than to fifteen inches, and a bushel and a half more than on land where a subsoil plow was used. The ground for oats has been disked in each case.

Select Native Trees.

Simplicity and naturalness should be the ideal in beautifying the rural home grounds. The trees that are native, such as the maples, oaks, elm, hickory, ashes and walnut, are best to use. Naturalness, harmony and strength are not added to the home environment by the planting of such trees as the weeping willow, weeping mulberry, Irish juniper, umbrella catalpa, Japanese maple, Camperdown elm, golden arbor vitae, purple plum, copper beeches and the like. These are oddities, unnatural or exotic, and are not in place in a strictly American landscape.—Ohio Agricultural College.

How to Plant Corn.

Drilled corn has given higher yields than that planted in hills, the same amount of seed being used per acre. In experiments conducted at the Ohio experiment station. For corn planted in hills three plants per hill have been most satisfactory. While drilled corn yielded about three bushels more per acre than that planted in hills, it was found more difficult to cultivate and to harvest by hand. For machine cutting drilled corn is preferred.

Silage For Dairy Cows.

Cows fed a ration composed largely of silage produced 17 per cent more milk and 28 per cent more butter fat than other cows fed chiefly on grain in a feeding test at the Ohio Experiment station. The silage ration was considerably cheaper.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

TYPHOID FEVER is a severe disease coming on with headache, rise of temperature, diarrhoea, and abdominal distention. It always occurs as the result of taking into one's stomach food or drink contaminated with the body discharges. These discharges may enter one's mouth in water which has been polluted with sewage containing typhoid germs, with milk or food to which the germs have been carried by flies, by dirty hands, by dirty water, etc., or by direct contact with a person ill of typhoid fever. It is also distributed by "carriers," that is by persons who, though immune to the disease themselves, carry the germs of the disease in their intestines and transmit it to others through the discharges reaching food, etc. "Typhoid Mary," the New York cook who gave the disease to a large number of people before she was locked up, is a typhoid example of a typhoid carrier. People who have typhoid fever may carry the disease for a long time and be a source of danger to others, especially if they have anything to do with the preparation of food.

Typhoid fever is rather common about the farms especially if a single case has occurred in a neighborhood where there is any chance of the general water supply, such as a spring, stream, or lake, receiving the intestinal discharges of the sick person. A typical example of this occurred in connection with an outbreak of the disease at Plymouth, Pa., in 1885. Plymouth is a mining town with a population at the time of the outbreak of about 8,000. Its water-supply was obtained from a mountain stream draining an almost uninhabited watershed, and the water for the town was impounded in a series of four impounding reservoirs. In January a man living up stream, who had spent his Christmas holidays in Philadelphia, became ill at his home. The excreta were not disinfected but were thrown either into the frozen creek or upon its snow-covered banks. In March there came a spring thaw and the accumulations of excreta were washed down the stream. Three weeks later there was an acute outbreak of typhoid fever in the little town. In some days as many as 100 cases occurred. One thousand and four cases were reported. There were, it is estimated, altogether 1,500 cases and the deaths numbered 114. The infection was most marked in those who used the town water supply, the epidemic being limited to the users of this water. Those who used well water escaped the disease. This epidemic of typhoid was studied and definitely traced to its source by competent observers, and is a marked example of the necessity of protection of public water supplies.

We are not exempt from such lessons in Ontario. The outbreak of typhoid in Ottawa in 1911 and again in 1913, and that of the town of Sarnia in 1911-12, all of which were proven to have occurred as the result of sewage-polluted water, have been sharp lessons in our own province, lessons unhappily which have not yet convinced the respective civic authorities of the necessity of adequate protection of their water-supplies.

In the majority of cases the well is the chief and usually the only source of water supply. It is in many cases a safe supply, especially if it is a deep or driven well and more particularly if it is well protected against surface drainage. But many farm wells are shallow with the curb made of unjointed timber or stone which allow of easy drainage to the well. The covering is often of loose boards through which surface impurities may easily run. The danger is slight unless the impurities contain, which they may easily do, the excreta of persons carelessly thrown upon the ground. If the excreta comes from a person affected with typhoid the danger is imminent, and there is almost a certainty that users of the water will suffer from the disease. The moral is plain: PROTECT THE WELL!

Summer Diarrhoea kills a large number of babies every summer. It is preventable if care is taken with the babies' food. If at all severe call the doctor at once. In any case it is always safe to give a dose of the good old-fashioned castor oil. That is one of the mother remedies to be banked upon. If the diarrhoea is severe cut off all food, especially MILK, which is death to a baby with diarrhoea, but give boiled water in as large amounts as the baby would have of food. In older children give only water and gruel or dry toast. But get a doctor at once.

N.B.—Questions on subjects pertinent to public health will be answered from time to time.

Child's Apron.

A child will not object to wearing an apron if it is attractive, but to be attractive does not mean that it necessarily has to be expensive. A very good looking model recently seen was made of blue checked gingham, cut kimono fashion with sleeves. The neck line was bound with blue braid, and the same trimmed the narrow cuffs into which the sleeves were gathered. Across the bottom of the apron there was applied a strip of white muslin, on which little Bopeep and her sheep were painted. This applied strip of muslin formed a sort of deep pocket. It could, however, be stitched down.

Changing the Remedy.

Professor Richet informed the Academie des Sciences at a recent meeting in Paris that he had proved that microbes very quickly accustom themselves to a medium that at first is poisonous to them. Therefore he suggested that wounds should be frigated with several different antiseptics, using one one day, another the next and never bathing the wound with the same antiseptic two days in succession.

The editor of La Nature suggests that this idea may be applicable also to internal medicine and may explain why each new remedy produces for several days a marked improvement, but ceases to be effective as soon as the microbes and the body have become accustomed to the new medicine.

Odd Veranda Decoration.

A well known hotel in Marblehead, Mass., has a large brass dial set in the floor of one of its verandas, on which are indicated the points of the compass and also the directions in which several important cities lie and their distance away. It shows, for example, that Montreal lies to the northeast approximately 340 miles away, that London is almost due east 3,785 miles distant and that 942 miles to the southeast is Bermuda. This unusual decoration in the floor of the veranda, says Popular Mechanics, is a source of much interest to the guests of the hotel, who come from many quarters of the globe.

BRING ON THE ELECTION.

Halifax Chronicle: By all means, let the people be consulted. Let their voice be heard. If we are to strive to again unite the Canada riven by the Borden-Bourassa alliance of 1911 let us have an election and at once. Thirty days should suffice for the contest. Supply has already been voted for more than that period. If Parliament is dissolved and the writs issued immediately, we can have a real national win-the-war Government fresh Bonnycastle Dale writes of experiences with wildfowl on the Pacific Coast in the August issue of Rod and Gun, which is now on the news-stands, while in The Letter of the Law, Leslie Hayward describes entertainingly the experience of a typical Maritime province guide with a troublesome party in New Brunswick woods. A Day's Fishing in Timagami records a perfectly satisfactory outing by a number of Torontonians on one of the dog days of last summer. Other articles are King of the Stream, Canoe Racing, The Prairie Chicken, The Criminal, etc. In addition departments devoted to Guns and Ammunition, The Trap, Fishing Kennel, etc. are well maintained. This representative Canadian sportsmen's publication is put out by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Publisher, Woodstock, Ont.

A TIP AT HAND. (St. Thomas Journal)

The Conservatives at Ottawa will have the opportunity of finding out what the country thinks of an administration that lets influential men reap millions of dollars of profit out of the people's food in war time.

Borden-Bourassa alliance of 1911 let us have an election and at once. Thirty days should suffice for the contest. Supply has already been voted for more than that period. If Parliament is dissolved and the writs issued immediately, we can have a real national win-the-war Government fresh from the people, installed in office before the end of August. Before the snow flies Canada will be settled down to a thoroughgoing and efficient administration of her war business, something she has never had since August, 1914. An election is the only and the right way out. It is in the country's best interests. Let us have it at once.

MRS. J. S. HULETT DEAD.

The many friends of Mrs. J. S. Hulett, Edmonton, Alberta, will be sorry to learn that she died of heart failure, on July 14th, at her home in that city. She was for many years a resident of Napanee where Mr. Hulett conducted a photograph business. She is survived by her sorrowing husband, who is an invalid; one sister, Mrs. Ira B. Hudgins, Selby; and two brothers Geo. A. Sexsmith, of Toronto; and David R., of Selby. Her kindly disposition endeared her to many, both here and in her old home town. Her funeral took place at her home on Sunday, at 2 p.m., and was largely attended, many following to the grave side in the beautiful Edmonton cemetery. Her niece Mrs. W. E. Wilson, was with her at the last. Her end was peace.

Call in and let us give you a list of necessary articles to send to the soldier boys, such as Oxo Cubes, Malted Milk Tablets, Bovril in tins, Chocolate Nut Bars, Gum, Throat Quenchers, Acid Drops, etc. You get them all at WALLACE'S Limited, the leading Drug Store.

DIED AT ENTERPRISE.

On Friday, July 13th, death claimed a most respected and popular resident of the vicinity of Enterprise in the person of Michael Moran. Although the deceased had been a most patient sufferer for many months from a complication of diseases, the end came very peacefully and called away a devoted father, an exemplary and industrious citizen and a man whose sterling qualities had endeared him to all. During his life he was an illustrious example of an honest straightforward man who took a keen interest in all matters pertaining to the general good of the community. He was a devoted supporter of the Catholic faith, and in politics a staunch Liberal. He leaves a family of six children, all of whom were with him during his last hours, except Mrs. William Byrns, of Kerrobert, Sask. Two sisters also survive, Mrs. P. J. McCarthy, Oswego, N. Y., and Mrs. P. Hughes, New York city. The funeral, held on Monday to the Church of Annunciation, was one of the largest seen in this vicinity. Rev. Father McDonald sang solemn high mass and the remains was interred in the new cemetery. The pall-bearers were Edward Clair, Thomas Dunn, Edward Foster, L. Byrns, Joseph and John Timmons.
